Dear Friends of Business,

The Frederick Office of Economic Development is pleased to once again partner with Frederick Magazine for the third annual Top 50 Frederick. The publication is a marketing tool to showcase our top businesses that help preserve our unique business environment.

Top 50 Frederick for 2019 highlights Frederick County's Top 50 Best Workplaces. They were selected based on unique initiatives to attract and keep talent, healthy living programs, mentorships, and ways to encourage community involvement. The Office of Economic Development received the nominations and determined the top 50 based on:

- The company's median salary
- The benefits offered to employees
- Community involvement
- Work environment
- Professional growth opportunities
- Work-life balance

You can champion this project by responding to an advertising request from Diversions Publications, publishers of Frederick Magazine. Not only will this publication be distributed to their subscribers with the January 2020 issue, it will also be available throughout the county at various businesses all year long.

We thank you and ask for your continued support of Top 50 Frederick.

Sincerely,

Helen Propheter,
Director, Office of Economic Development

ABOUT
TOP 50
FREDERICK

Frederick County has 249,277 people contained within its 664 square miles. Businesses number more than 9,000 with an estimated 100,428 workers. The county's rich agricultural heritage is intact with 1,308 farms dotting the landscape. The county boasts an $11 billion economy with world-class bioscience and an advanced technology sector, plus a solid manufacturing presence and top CEOs. Good things are indeed happening in Frederick County.

The county's Office of Economic Development receives consistently positive feedback from long-established companies as well as those looking to locate here, including that the county is ideally located, has the necessary demographics, incentives and taxes, skilled workforce, quality of life and success stories.

The third issue of Top 50 Frederick will focus on the best places to work. Also, the pages will contain stories such as a look at workplace design that enhances productivity and worker morale and a report on how companies encourage staff to get involved in community efforts to improve life in Frederick.

The Office of Economic Development and Frederick Magazine are pleased to be presenting information that will no doubt have readers saying, "I didn't know that," or, "So that's who heads that business."

We invite you to be a part of Top 50 Frederick, a publication that people will pick up, read and talk about.
